Chris Cox Three-Day Clinics Offer Intense Learning Experience

(Mineral Wells, TX, June 4, 2008---) You watched him win Road to the Horse again this spring. You tune in regularly to catch his popular RFD-TV show. Now it's time to get down to business with Chris Cox in an upcoming three-day clinic.

Delve into an intense learning experience that will permanently impact your horsemanship at one of several three-day clinics scheduled across the country. Internationally respected horseman and clinician Chris Cox works directly with clinic participants and their horses, using his effective and practical methods that have won praise from horse owners of all ages and disciplines.

Only 20 participants are accepted, resulting in individual feedback from Chris throughout the three days of each clinic. Cost to participate in the clinic is $1300 per rider/horse. Auditors without horses may attend at a cost of $35 per day, according to seating availability.

Designed for intermediate and advanced riders, the clinics are personally taught by Chris and his hand-picked instructors, and cover the basic horsemanship techniques he teaches in his instructional program. Throughout the clinic, Chris will assess and work closely with horses and riders, sharing his insights to help each participant improve the relationship with his or her horse.

Space is limited, so contact the Chris Cox Horsemanship Company today to put down your deposit and reserve a place in a scheduled three-day clinic. For more details, please contact the ranch office at 940-327-8113, 888-81-HORSE, or visit www.chris-cox.com and click on three-day clinics.
